PRESIDENTS COMMENTS

AUGUST/SEPTEMBER Due to computer problems and other circumstances, we are combining these two months. HOT, lazy days of summer come to a close as cool breezes foretell the coming of another change of the year. The last fling of Labor Day Weekend and already the busy fall season is here with back to school or college for family members and return of routines. The time of harvesting garden produce and preserving for winter. Take advantage of this great source of colorful subjects for still life paintings. Time passes by so fast. When I think back on the years past, I find every day activities and years go by and are not remembered unless some event happens to mark that in our memory. It may be something good or unhappy that impressed that event in our mind, and we may not even remember the year, but it was important to us. Many people write up journals to keep their memories stored for future reference. We can look back on our personal art history and memories from the time we made our first painting, and how we have improved by viewing our progress. I remember how exciting it was to create a work of art, see it develop and how wonderful to learn how to do it. Now it is so exciting to teach others how to paint and see the excitement in their eyes and emotions on their faces to be able to create a painting. That first painting sale recalls our happy memories and satisfaction. If you have been able to sell your works, hopefully you have photos for your records. Many have been given to family members and friends and we see them when we visit their homes. It is such a pleasure to see them displayed and know it was created by you appreciated by them. Time to make more paintings, so now to work, to work.

EXCITING NEWS !! Themes for the next two years have been chosen. 2017 will go back to Medieval Times with the theme of “RENAISSANCE “. And then 2018 will take us to “LAS VEGAS” theme. So you can watch for costumes and ideas to fit those themes. For next year, think of Ladies of the Court, Queens and Kings, jesters, musicians, scullery maids, Robin hood, and so much more in medieval times. Old masters paintings would be a good source of ideas.
